THE BROKEN HOME.

"TRUTH STRANGER THAN FICTION."

In San Francisco, on the north side of Folsom street, overlooking Mission Bay, stands a palatial residence.

The interior of this house is even more beautiful than its exterior, every apartment being in its way a gem of magnificence and refinement.

The library especially realizes the most perfect ideal of an elegant and cultured home.

And yet, at the moment we look in upon him—one August afternoon, as he occupied his library—the proprietor of all this wealth appeared of all men the most miserable.

He was Mr. Morton Preble, for many years a leading banker of San Francisco.

It was in vain that the broad bay window at the south end of the room had been opened, giving ingress to the sunshine and the fragrance of rare flowers—in vain that the walls were lined with richly-carved book-cases and paintings—in vain that soft couches and luxuriant chairs had been gathered around him.

He was wretched.

He lay on a sofa, in the depths of the great bay-window, the wreck of a once powerful man. His figure was thin and gaunt; his face white as marble; his eyes having an expression of woeful apprehension, of harrowing anxiety, of dreadful expectancy.

It was evident at a glance that no merely physical ailment had made him what he was.

By what withering secret, by what destroying affliction, had he been thus agonized? thus haunted? thus hunted? he so noble and good! he so wealthy and distinguished!

As he moved restlessly upon his luxurious cushions the pretty clock on the mantel-piece struck five, every stroke seeming to fall like a hammer upon the heart of the nervous invalid. He aroused himself, struggling feebly to a sitting posture.

"Oh, will this fatal day never, never pass?" he murdered; "nor bring us relief?"

Noticing with a nervous start that he was alone, he touched a bell upon a table before him, and called:

"Helen! Helen! where are you?"

Before the echoes of his voice had died out a step was heard, and his wife entered his presence.

"I left you only for a moment, Morton," she said, advancing to the banker's side. "You were dozing, I think. I wished to send for the doctor!"

She was a beautiful woman, of some six and thirty years, graceful, with broad white brows, and loving eyes, in which the brightness and sweetness of a sunshiny nature were still perceptible, under a grief and anxiety no less poignant than that evinced by her husband.

"The doctor!" he echoed, half-reproachfully.

"Yes, dear," she said, in a calm and cheerful voice, as she drew a chair to the side of a sofa, stroking the corrugated forehead of the invalid with a magnetic touch. "He will be here immediately. Your last nervous crisis alarmed me. You may become seriously ill!"

Mr. Preble bestowed an affectionate look upon his wife, but said despondently:

"The doctor! He cannot 'minister to a mind diseased!' Oh, if these long hours would only pass! If I only knew what the day has yet in store for us!"

"Look up, Morton!" enjoined Mrs. Preble, with a reverently trustful glance upward through the open window at the blue sky, and as if looking beyond the azure clouds therein. "Let us appeal from the injustice and wickedness of earth to the goodness and mercy of Heaven!"

The banker gave a low, sobbing sigh.

"I cannot look up, Helen," he answered, with a passionate tremor in his voice—"only down, down at the grave that is opening before me!"

Mrs. Preble continued to stroke his forehead softly, while she lifted her pale face to the sunlight streaming into the apartment.

"Look up, Morton—always look up!" she again enjoined upon the invalid. "During all these fourteen years of agony, I have not once doubted either the goodness or the justice of Heaven. 'Blessed are they that mourn: for they shall be comforted.' I believe that we shall yet rejoice more keenly than we have mourned, and that we shall come to a glorious day of joy beyond all this long night of sorrow!"

The face of the invalid lighted up with an answering glow, and he murmured:

"Glorious faith! My wife, you are indeed a blessed comforter! Perhaps, after all, you are right!"

A knock resounded on a side door at this juncture, and the next moment Dr. Hutton, the family physician, for whom Mrs. Preble had sent, entered the room.

He was an old man, portly in figure, with white hair and beard, but with a fresh and ruddy complexion, a pair of shrewd blue eyes, and with an exuberant boyishness of manner that sat well upon him. He approached the sofa, after greeting the husband and wife, and lifted the thin, restless hand of the invalid, feeling his pulse.

"Quite a high fever," he said, after a brief pause. "Worrying again, eh, Mr. Preble?" You are wearing yourself out. Medicine will do you no good so long as your mind is in its present condition. I must give you an opiate—"

"Not now, doctor," interposed the banker. "I cannot—must not—sleep to-day! I need to be broad awake now, for I cannot tell at any moment what the next may bring forth. I am looking for the culmination of all my years of anguish—for the crowning agony of the whole. Perhaps even now — Ah, what was that?"

He started up wildly, and then, as the sound that had disturbed him was not repeated, he sank back again on his cushions, pallid and panting.

The doctor looked at Mrs. Preble with an anxious, questioning glance.

"It is the anniversary," she replied to his unspoken inquiry—"the anniversary of our loss."

"Ah, yes," said the doctor. "I remember."

"Yes, it's another of those terrible days," cried the banker, in a hollow whisper. "Sit down, doctor, and I will tell you the whole story. I can think of nothing else to-day, and am almost wild with apprehension and anxiety. Sit down."

Dr. Hutton drew up a chair and seated himself, his face expressing the double solicitude of a friend and physician.

"You knew us fourteen years ago, doctor," said Mr. Preble. "We lived then where we do now, in a cottage on the site of this great mansion.—There were but the three of us—Helen and I, and our three year old Jessie. And it was fourteen years ago to-day that our little Jessie was stolen from us."

"I remember it," said the doctor softly. "Yet might she not have been lost, Mr. Preble? She went out to play in the garden, if I remember rightly, and was never seen by you again. She might have strayed away—"

"So we thought for a whole year, doctor," interrupted the banker. "We never dreamed that she had been stolen. We searched everywhere for her and offered immense rewards for her recovery. I employed detectives, but all to no purpose. When our little Jessie ran down the steps into that flower-garden," and he pointed to the front of the house, "as if the earth had opened and swallowed her up, we never saw her again."

"She must have found the gate open and wandered out," suggested Dr. Hutton. "She might have strolled down to the waters and been drowned.

The banker fixed his burning eyes upon the physician's face, and whispered:

"I said we never saw the poor child again. I did not say we had not heard of her. She was lost on the 9th of August, 1854. For a year we thought her dead. But on the anniversary of our loss we received a written message concerning her."

"A message!" cried Dr. Hutton, starting.

"A mere scrawl—a single line in a hand evidently disguised," said the banker. "Here it is."

He produced a dingy scrap of paper from a drawer in the table, and held it up to the view of the physician, who read as follows:

"August 9, 1855. Jessie, ha, ha! Jessie!"

Dr. Hutton looked, with a puzzled air, from the scrap of paper, which he turned over and over, to the countenance of the banker.

"I can make nothing of this," he declared. "It is merely a date, with the name of your lost daughter. It tells me nothing."

"Nor did it us, at first," said Mr. Preble." "Then that name and that date, with the demon laugh connecting them, set us to thinking. A whole year we agonized over the dreadful problem, and then we received another message which you shall see."

He thrust a second slip of paper, identical in shape and appearance with the first, before the gaze of Dr. Hutton, who read it aloud:

"August 9, 1856. Your Jessie still lives."

The physician started as if electrified.

"Ah! this is something definite—something decisive," he muttered.—"It convinced you that your daughter was still living."

"Yes, doctor," said Mr. Preble, and every anniversary of that day has brought us some message. The disappearance of the child, mysterious as it is, does not seem to me half so strange as that the villain who took her away could contrive to communicate with us every year since, and always on a particular day—the anniversary of that on which she was stolen—without our being able to discover who he is. And a still greater wonder to me is what can be his motive. It seems incredible. If it was stated in a novel many people would not believe it.—But 'truth is stranger than fiction.'".

Mrs. Preble drew from her husband's breast-pocket his note-book, opened it to the proper page, and presented it to the physician.

Dr. Hutton adjusted his spectacles, glanced over the page, and then slowly read the groupe of entries aloud.—The entries for the first year is as follows:

August 9, 1855. Jessie, ha, ha! Jessie."

And the next year it is—

August 9, 1856. Your Jesse still lives!"

And the next—

"August 9, 1857. She is in good hands!"

And the next—

"August 9, 1858. She is well as ever!"

And the next—

"August 9, 1859. I saw her yesterday!"

And the next—

"August 9, 1860. She's growing rapidly!"

And the next—

"August 9, 1861. She continues to do well!"

And the next—

"August 9 1862. I've seen her again!"

And the next—

"August 9, 1863. She's becoming a woman!"

And the next—

"August 9, 1864. Your child is thirteen!"

And the next—

"August 9, 1865. She's lovelier than ever!"

And the next—

"August 9, 1866. She's really charming!"

And last year it was—

"August 9, 1867. My reward is at hand!"

And what shall we get to-day!

The physician looked up and fixed his thoughtful gaze upon the bereaved husband and wife.

"How did these messages come to you?" he demanded.

"Invariably by post," replied Mr. Preble. "Usually to the house, but sometimes to the office!"

"And you have never seen their author?"

"Never!"

"The last of them is dated, I see a year ago to day!"

"Yes, yes," faltered the banker, "and the time has come for another message. This is the 9th of August, 1868"

"I see," said Dr. Hutton. "And this is the secret of your terrible excitement! You are expecting to receive to-day another of these strange messages!"

There was a brief silence. Mrs. Preble's hand fluttered in its task, and her face grew very pale. The banker breathed gaspingly. The physician regarded them both in friendly sympathy.

"We shall hear of her again to-day," said Mr. Preble; "and what will the message be?"

The mother averted her face. Her brave heart faltered as that question echoed in her soul.

"The writer of these letters is unquestionably the abductor of your child!" said Dr. Hutton.

"Have you any suspicion as to his identity?"

"Not the slightest," said Mrs. Preble. "We have puzzled over the problem for many years, but we cannot guess who he is."

"Think," said the doctor. "Have you no enemy? I do not mean people with whom you are not friendly—every stirring man has plenty of these—but a downright enemy! Is there no man whom you know in the East who hated you? No one against whom you were called upon to testify—no one whom you possibly injured?"

The banker shook his head. He had asked himself all of those questions repeatedly.

"I have no such enemy, doctor," he answered with sincerity of voice and manner.

"And Mrs. Preble?" suggested the doctor, turning to her. "Have you no rejected suitor who might be revengeful enough to desolate your home?"

"No," said the lady. "I was married early. Morton was my first lover!"

"This is strange—very strange!"—muttered the doctor. "You are not conscious of having an enemy—a hidden foe—a fiend in human form—who is working out against you a fearful hatred! And you have not the slightest suspicion as to whom he is?"

"Not the slightest," declared the banker."

"Not the slightest!" echoed Mrs. Preble.

"My husband had a step-brother who might have been capable of this infamy—but he is dead!"

"The handwriting is not familiar?"

"No. It is merely a rude scrawl, as you see," said the banker. "It suggests nothing—except that is evidently disguised!"

Again there was a profound silence.

"Our child is seventeen years old now," at length murmured Mrs. Preble, her voice trembling. "She is on the threshold of womanhood. No doubt, during all these years, she has yearned for us, wherever she may be, as we have yearned for her!"

"But where is she?" asked the physician—and now his voice was broken by his deep sympathy with the agonized parents. "Where can she be?"

"Heaven only knows," answered the mother. "Perhaps in San Francisco—perhaps in some rude hut in the interior with some obscure farmer, and under a name that is not hers!—I think her abductor would have carried her to some lonely region of the interior, among the valleys and mountains. Yet I never see a young girl in the streets without turning to look at her. I never hear a girlish voice without listening eagerly, half fancying that it may prove the voice of my lost Jessie!"

"Oh, pitying heaven!" sighed Dr. Hutton, dashing a flood of tears from his eyes. "Will this long agony never be over?"

"We hope so, and even believe so," answered Mrs. Preble, with the firmness of an unfaltering trust in God's mercy. "The last message we received from our enemy seems to point to some kind of a change."

"True," assented Dr. Hutton, looking at the message in question. "It is unlike the others. It says that his 'reward is at hand.' He means either that he intends to marry your daughter, or that he intends to demand money of you for bringing back—or both."

"We shall soon know," said Mrs. Preble, with forced calmness. "To-day we shall have another message, no doubt. What will it be?"

The banker turned restlessly on his sofa, and his face grew paler.

"Whatever it is let it come!" he murmured. Anything can be borne better than this awful suspense. Let it come!"

As if his impatient words had precipitated a crisis, a step was heard on the walk at this moment, and a ring at the front door followed.

"Another message!" breathed the banker.

A servant soon entered, bearing a letter, which he extended to Mr. Preble, saying:

"The bearer is in the hall."

With an eager gaze the banker glanced at the superscription of the missive.

"It is from HIM!" he faltered.

He tore the envelope open.

It contained a slip of paper, of well-known shape and appearance, upon which was scrawled a single line, in an equally well-known hand-writing which the banker exhibited to the physician.

This line was as follows:

August 9, 1868. At six I will call!"

A shock of wonder and horror shook the three simultaneously.

"Will call!" cried Mr. Preble, starting to her feet, and glaring wildly around.

"Is coming here?" cried Mrs. Preble, also arising.

"It seems so," said Dr. Hutton, his eyes again reverting to the message. "He will be here at six o'clock, and see! it is six already!"

Even as he spoke, the clock on the mantlepiece commenced striking the appointed hour, and at that instant heavy foot steps resounded in the hall approaching the library.

"It is he!" cried the doctor, also rising.

As the last stroke of the hour resounded, the door leading from the hall again opened.

One long and horrified glance cast the banker and his wife in that direction, and then she fell heavily to the floor.

Her senses had left her.

The above we publish as a specimen chapter; but the continuation of this story will be found only in the New York Ledger. Ask for the number dated December 4th, which can be had at any news office or book store. If you are not within reach of a news office, you can have the Ledger mailed to you for one year by sending three dollars to ROBERT BONNER, publisher, 182 William Street, New York. The Ledger pays more for original contributions than any other periodical in the world. It will publish none but the very, very best. Its moral tone is the purest, and its circulation the largest. Everybody who takes it is happier for having it. Leon Lewis, Mrs. Harriet Lewis, Mrs. Southworth, Mr. Cobb, Professor Peck, Mary Kyle Dallas, Fanny Fern and Miss Dupuy will write only for the Ledger hereafter.

Mr. Bonner, like other leading publishers, might issue three or five papers and magazines; but he prefers to concentrate all his energies upon one and in that way to make it the best. One Dexter is worth more than three or five ordinary horses.

The majority of the Board were nominated and elected by the Republican party and they as honorable party men should do noth. ing to encourage guerrillaism if they want their party to live. "Treason must be punished."

CREMER has been trying to make the people believe that he and his clan are opposed to secret political meetings.—Now that the editor of the Journal & American has "blowed" one held at Cremer's own house after the Convention and before the election, it is probable that Cremer will soon withdraw all opposition to secret political organizations, and take the Doctor's pills without a grunt.

ONE fact to be remembered. There is not a Republican paper in the State that has approved of the course of the Guerrilla organ or its faction of disorganizers.

Another fact to be remembered.—All the Democratic papers that have said anything about the political troubles in this county have spoken approvingly of the course of the Guerrilla organ and its faction.

TEXAS and Mississippi hold their elections on Tuesday, the 30th instant, when their Constitutions are to be passed upon, and State officers, including Legislatures, with Representatives in Congress, chosen in each. The contest in each is spirited; but there is no doubt that the Constitution of each will be ratified; the proscriptive clauses of the Mississippi instrument being voted down. No such were framed in Texas.

THE Legislative "Rings" are already at work dividing the offices. A combination is forming to defeat the re-election of Mackey for State Treasurer. Gen. Irwin, who was defeated for re-election last winter, is again a candidate. The Republican party will have a majority in both Houses. Guerrillaism gave the Democracy the two members from this district—no opening for any Republican from the district for a situation on the Hill this winter.

ANOTHER MINING HORROR.—A terrible mining accident, almost equal in extent to our recent Avondale horror, occurred in an old silver mine, near the city of Guanajuato, Mexico, on the 9th of October. While the miners, with their wives and children who had brought them their meals, were eating their dinner, an immense portion of rock forming the roof of the chamber, 400 feet in height, fell down and crushed them to death instantly. Over one hundred men, women and children were thus crushed beneath 25,000 tons of rock.

THE Guerrilla Organ says it is not true that the men on the Republican county ticket were as much the nominees of the party as were Geary and Williams. We can't see the difference. The delegate elections were ordered by the Republican County Committee—Delegates were elected—they met in County Convention and nominated the men voted for by Republican party men. Geary and Williams were nominated by delegates elected by county organizations. The county organization is as much a party organization as the State organization is a party organization.

Good and prominent Republicans in Blair, Cambria, Centre, Mifflin, Juniata and Perry, our Congressional, Senatorial and Representative Districts, are concerned about the "condition of things" in the good old county of Huntingdon. The "situation" is bad enough, and promises to be no better in the next campaign, for we have the promise of the Guerrilla Organ that its faction will oppose the election of any man not of their choice. If guerrillaism is to be made respectable by bestowing upon it the best offices in the gift of our Senator and Congressmen, then the Republican party will not only have the Democratic party to contend with, but also the important money offices in this Congressional District. When Andy Johnson was working to defeat the Republican party he kept in or placed in office such men as were willing to work with him—the Guerrilla leaders are doing the same thing—giving office to those only who united with the Democrats to defeat Republican nominees. The Guerrillas had better all get appointments for they will have no show for an election to any office for some years to come.

THE RECENT MURDER.

What is our county coming to? was the exclamation of many, upon hearing on Thursday morning last of the cruel, cold-blooded murder on Wednesday night of a respectable family, near Pleasant Grove. On Wednesday night the trial of four persons implicated in the murder of a Mr. Mackey on Broad Top, had ended, and the verdict of murder in the second degree was brought in by a jury that had been listening to the evidence pro and con for over a week. And then to think that immediately upon the close of one murder trial came the sad intelligence that another murder far transcending the previous one in atrocity and extent had been committed, by two fiends in human shape, and within eight miles of our own firesides. This intelligence was much more than our citizens, accustomed to order and quiet, could comprehend, and gave occasion to many exclamations of terror and revenge. No wonder our people were excited, and no wonder they were ready to lynch the culprits ere justice could be meted by law; and though we do not encourage mob-law, yet we do not wonder at the threats that were heaped upon the heads of the murderers as they were taken to the jail from the depot, when our people had learned from those who had been at the scene of the murder, the extent of the crime that had been committed.

A generation has passed away since the terrible murder was committed by Robt. McConaughy, in the southern end of our county; but enough is told by those who survive that period, and enough is revealed by those who are acquainted with the published particulars of the murder of the family of Mr. Brown, to assure our citizens that the murder of Mr. Peightal, wife and boy, fully equals it in cruelty; and we believe that had there been more of them in the house, the fiend would not have finished his work of slaughter until none would have been left to tell the tale. What in the calendar of crime is there to surpass the inhumanity of the heartless villain, who, not content with despatching three victims of his malice with hatchet and bullet, then deliberately piles bed clothes upon them and sets them on fire. This is fiendishness unparalleled—crime unmatched—deviltry unheard of.

Our people can better understand the nature of the crime than those abroad, who have no knowledge of the innocent victims, and the magnitude of the deed has awakened great dread within them. We knew the world had many wicked people in it—we knew and read of murders being committed daily in other sections of our land; but we were not prepared to think that such a deed of unequalled wickedness was being concocted so near our own homes and beloved ones.

Another sad reflection upon the recent murder is the object for which it was committed. The murderers had heard in an indefinite way that Mr. Peightal had money. They did not know how much—but, be it much or little, all the inmates of the house must be murdered in order to get it. How true it is that "love of money is the root of all evil," and how true, in this case, has it been the incentive to a most inhuman crime. How often does the love of perishable lucre drive reason from its throne, scar the conscience, and lead man to a felon's or a suicide's grave.

In another column we publish as true an account of the murder as we could obtain from different sources, together with the partial confession of the murderers, and we forbear saying anything more upon the subject at present. A full confession may be expected from both of the prisoners, which of itself will be a sad enough commentary upon the folly of living a life of sin and permitting an inordinate desire for money to destroy judgment and blacken the heart.

WHO WILL DO IT?—We want to be "interviewed." Where is the reporter that would like to have a sweet morsel to roll under his tongue? We cordially and graciously invite the Philadelphia Post or New York Sun reporter to come to Huntingdon and give us a downright, thorough "interview." We want no half-way job made of it. Pere Hyacinth has been "interviewed," so has Brigham Young, Jr., and Col. Mosby. The two latter told all they knew and made up the balance. We are not aware that we know anything that anybody would like to know any thing at all about, so we would like to be "interviewed" just to see what we do know. Who wants to boss the job?

THE Peightal murder equals in atrocity and cold-blooded fiendishness the horrible murder of the Brown family, which took place in the lower part of this county in 1840, in which McConaughy was the murderer. Many of our readers will recollect that McConaughy was the son-in law of John Brown, (who lived on the Ridges about five miles from this place,) and in order to possess himself of old Mr. Brown's farm, he went to work deliberately and in the most cold-blooded manner possible, to kill the whole family, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Brown, two daughters and three sons. All were killed except old Mr. Brown, who escaped after being shot through the ear.

MORE LIGHT!

A large number of our readers do not have an opportunity to read the Journal & American; for the information of such we copy from that paper of last week a few interesting political paragraphs to show that our advanced position against the Guerrilla clan was correct. Mr. McDivitt writes from the "Inner Circle"—he was "in," but has been "dropped" because he would not continue to work up to the Guerrilla programme. Read:

"We took issue with the Globe in its attack upon Mr. Logan, the Chairman of the County Committee, believing that he was acting honestly in promoting the interests of the party, and denounced him only when we discovered that he had betrayed the trust confided to him by the party organization, and was acting a treacherous part by circulating bogus tickets and acting with guerrillas and Copperheads for the defeat of the party."

* * * * * *

"We speak what we do know, when we say that the opposition to the Republican ticket organized inside of another 'ring' or 'League, one principle of which was to 'let no man inside, that works outside,' and that the object was the defeat of every man on the ticket who had not been selected by the 'ring.' It was conceded on the part of the 'council' that no more 'favorable time' was ever presented for the disruption of the party. The elements were all propitious. The prejudices of the people against secret societies could be appealed to. The well known personal enmity existing between Messrs. Scott and Woods would secure the co-operation of the former; that Senator, though standing very square on his dignity, could be reached at the vulnerable point of his unrelenting and vituperative nature; and in the 'glowing language of one of the moving spirets, 'Scott could be used for this purpose'; Dorris would 'do anything Scott told him,' and Blair must do likewise. Chairman Logan could be induced, 'by a promise from Scott,' to betray the party and make use of his position to defeat the ticket, and Cremer, fresh from his defeat in Convention, was feeling 'sore enough to be used for almost any purpose.'"

* * * * * *

"The plans thus artfully laid and devised were afterwards more fully matured, by a secret conclave of 'Inner Circle' members and 'outer court-worshippers,' held at Mr. Cremer's residence, where it was agreed that 'negotiations should be immediately opened up with the Democrats', to defeat the Republican ticket, and share the spoils. One of the stipulations was that they (the Democrats) should have 'anything they wanted,' in consideration of their assistance in accomplishing the defeat of the objectionable part of the ticket, namely, Messrs. Swoope, Williamson, Fouse, Lamberson, and Richardson. A subsequent attempt on the part of the same party to manipulate the County Committee, failed, partially, on account of Mr. Swoope having too many friends there, but the result of the election proved that the 'negotiations' had been effected. We were shortly afterwards waited upon by a Committee—appointed, as we supposed, by this 'ring'—with a proposition, which, from motives of self-respect, we were compelled to decline. We were then informed, in the expressive language of one of the Committee, that we were 'too d—d independent for poor men;' that they 'had money enough to start another paper and crush us out.' Our answer was that 'they had money enough to crush us, but not enough to buy us,' and here the conference ended."

* * * * * *

"Mr. Cremer insists that we are denying the existence of the so-called 'People's League.' We are neither denying nor affirming it. We know nothing about it, further than the circumstance of hearing Mr. Scott read, with considerable of flourish, what purported to be the constitution of the same, before the County Committee, while encouraged by members of another secret League, acting behind the scenes; men who, kespised him, and whom he in his heart despised, and who, if they had been so minded, could easily have furnished him with a document of like import, the property of another secret organization formed for the same purpose, and having in view the same object. If any of our readers, who are skeptical on this subject, will call on us, we will satisfy them 'beyond the existence of a reasonable doubt.'"

* * * * * *

"There never was a greater humbug, on as small a scale, as this hue and cry against the 'Woods League,' gotten up as a 'stop-thief' cry by old political thieves themselves. The men engaged in it have joined hands with the Copperheads, and with them are now dividing the spoils of office. They have deceived you once, and will do so again. The only question is now, will you give them an opportunity? If so, then you may expect to see every office in the county filled by Copperheads, and the county hopelessly given over to the Democracy. We warned you once, and our words were prophetic—we now take the liberty of warning you again, against the men who, professing to be Republicans, are traitors to the party, and are leagued with Copperheadism for its defeat."

[We may expect further light from the old Republican organ, now that a family quarrel has commenced in earnest.]

A Sad Affair.

HAINESPORT, N. J., Nov. 11.—This usually quiet little town is this morning intensely excited by reason of a very shocking and sorrowful occurrence which transpired last night.

There reside here an elderly Quaker and wife, who were in good circumstances, so far as worldly goods are concerned, and who held the esteem of all the people of the town. Last night their residence was entered by two robbers, who proceeded to the bedchamber of the old couple. They summarily aroused the man and his wife, and, making them get up, securely tied them to the bed-posts.—Then they commenced to pillage the house. While they were engaged in ransacking the house, the old lady managed to free herself, and running to the window, jumped out. She was so seriously injured by her fall as to be unable to move. Her husband soon after set himself free, and securing his gun, started in search of the burglarious two, who it seems had fled with their booty shortly before. Upon looking out of the window, from the ledge of which his wife had jumped, he saw prostrate on the ground a form which he at once supposed to be that of a burglar. He discharged his gun, and in a moment was horrified by the discovery that he had shot his wife.—The contents of the weapon had lodged in her breast, producing injuries that will most probably prove fatal.

THE Republican press of the State don't recognize the Guerrilla organ as a Republican paper. Its clan stands about as fair with all true party men, and they feel it.

The Detroit Free Press mentions, as an illustration of what can be accomplished by industry and perseverance, that "twenty years ago Henry Thomson wasn't worth a cent. To-day he owns a hand-cart, and does hauling at thirty cents per load."

[COMMUNICATED.]

The End.

If any doubt ever existed in the minds of Republicans as to the real intentions of the founder of the Literati and his followers, that doubt must (after the publication of the confidential letters) forever vanish. The contest this fall for office has compelled them to show their cloven foot bald and bare. In the face of their declarations to the contrary; in the teeth of all their earnest protestations of Republicanism: covered over with pledges to the party and national principles; they disregarded all; voted and elected men to office who declared that "No man can be a good citizen or patriot without first becoming a Democrat." What horrid treason! What do you think of it, Republicans? This is the end to which the Guerrilla Chief's Republicanism leads; and because you do not follow him and transfer yourselves over to the Democrats you are denounced by that paragon of political honesty and principle, Theo traitors to the party!

W. H. W., has been pursued by him and his followers with the bitterest malignity; and the vocabulary of slander and defamation has been exhausted to find epithets base enough to describe him. And having done all this these men claim to be Republicans; they control our conventions, make our nominations, and fatten upon party spoils.

We have some here endeavoring to carry favor with the party while at heart they are in sympathy and confidence with the followers of the Guerrilla Chief. They have no claims upon us, and while we are anxious for a union of the party upon a proper basis, we much prefer an open enemy to a secret foe. It is useless to cry peace where there is no peace. If men will desert the party to secure the support of a corrupt faction, they must expect the just rewards of their treason.—Honest differences of opinion are to be tolerated; but toleration must be mutual; and political differences between members of the same party, become so great as to lead a faction, professing to be Republican, to oppose regular nominated candidates and to rejoice at the success of the opposition they prove themselves to be against us, and we will have nothing more to do with them. In this plain expression of our sentiments, we are supported by the masses of the party of this county, and we hope we are understood by those for whose benefit we write.

The time for fishiness, has gone, and he who does not plant himself fairly and squarely within the regular organization of the party, will find that when the time for recognition comes, he is not "chosen." TODD.

A murderer recently hanged in New Hampshire made the singular request that a quartette of young ladies of that city, who frequently sung for him after his conviction, remain in his cell when he passed out, and sing while the final preparations for his execution were being made. He also asked that no one related to his victim be a witness of his death.

If it be true that Dr. Livingston has discovered that one of the sources of the Nile rises ten degrees south of the equator, that river becomes the longest in the world. The distance from such a southern latitude to Cairo is about equal, in an air-line, to the distance from the mouths of the Mississippi to Sitka, in Alaska, or to Upernavik, in Greenland, or from the Isthmus of Panama to the mouth of the St. Lawrence River.

A few days since Captain Joseph Coppage, while plowing in a field near Naples, Ill., turned up a pot of gold coin. He stopped his team, examined the glittering metal closely, counted it, and found it amounted to $4000. He feared the metal might possibly have been deposited there by counterfeiters and might prove worthless. He took it to Winchester, and sold it to one of the banks for $5000 in greenbacks.

EXCITING SCENE IN COURT.—The Bedford Inquirer says: some time ago Wm. Y. Taylor, at the instance of Mary Jane Keating, was convicted of seduction, the result of which was imprisonment and fine, the first of which he served in the county jail and for the second plead insolvency. On Monday, in Court, while the authorities were effecting an arrangement regarding the plea of insolvency, the plaintiff signified a desire to speak to the defendant, which he granted, and walking across the room to where she was, stooped down to hear what she had to say, when in the twinkling of an eye, she dashed an ounce of vitriol, which she had in a tin cup, in his face. Part of it flew into her child's face, burning it badly. The defendant screamed, plaintiff fainted, and the court room was all uproar and excitement, no one knowing what the matter really was, some supposing defendant had been stabbed. Judge King ordered the plaintiff arrested and sent to jail. Defendant was sent to Dr. Marbourg's office, and the child to Dr. Reamer's office, for medical attention. At last accounts both parties were improving very rapidly.

On the east bank of the North River, in Hampshire county, West Virginia, is an ice mountain from 400 to 500 feet high. The western side of this mountain is covered with loose stone, of a light color, from base to summit. By removing the stone, pure, solid, crystal ice can be found in the warmest days of summer, and it has been found there as late as the middle of September. It may exist throughout the entire year if the rocks were removed to a sufficient depth. What seems strange is, that the side of the mountain where the ice is found is exposed to the sun throughout the day, and it is said the sun does not have as much effect in melting the ice as continuous rains.

We learn, says the Times, that the rate of postage between the United States and England will very shortly be reduced to 5d.—or six cents. This measure has long been talked of, but now it seems to have been finally decided on. The result will be an immense addition to the correspondence between the two countries, and the Post Office will in the end be richer, instead of poorer, for the change. Every reduction hitherto made has had that result. The new rate will come into effect on the 1st of January next. Poor immigrants will be the first to benefit by the wise policy of the two Governments.

Valuable Farms For Sale.

BY virtue of an order of the Orphans' Court of Blair county directed to the undersigned administrators, there will be offered for sale at the Court House in Hollidaysburg,

On Wednesday, December 8th, 1869,

All the real estate of John Weris, late of Catherine tp., Blair county, dec'd., consisting of THREE VALUABLE FARMS, to wit:

FARM NO. 1.

A splendid tract of land (formerly owned by Walter Graham, Esq.,) beautifully located on the Huntingdon and Indiana turnpike, within one and a half (1½) miles of the Penna. canal, in Canoe Valley, Blair county, one of the best grain growing valleys in the State. This farm contains 300 ACRES of the best limestone land, perfectly clear, and in a high state of cultivation. The Buildings consist of a large Mansion House and other dwelling houses, a large bank barn, a grist mill with (water power,) and all necessary outbuildings for the farm.

An unfailing stream of pure water flows through the tract, and the house is supplied by a fountain pump with good spring water. There are two good apple orchards on the premises. There are four churches within one and a half miles; and the post office at Yellow Springs and school house within one-half mile of the property. Taken altogether, this is one of the best located farms in Blair county.

FARM NO. 2.

Situate on Clover creek, in Woodberry township, Blair county, one and a half (1½) miles east of the town of Williamsburg, containing 140 ACRES of good limestone land in good farming order. On this farm is erected a good stone Dwelling House, a stone spring house, a bank barn, a carriage house and corn cribs, and all the necessary outbuildings. An uncommonly fine spring of limestone water is near the house, and beautifully enclosed with wall of cut stone. There is on this tract an excellent apple orchard in good bearing condition. Schools and churches convenient.

FARM NO. 3.

Situate on the Juniata river one mile east of Hollidaysburg, Pa., containing about 160 ACRES, on which is erected a brick Dwelling House and bank barn, together with all the necessary outbuildings. Part of this farm is a rich alluvial soil; the other part good limestone—both in good state of cultivation. On this farm is also a good apple orchard. Its proximity to the thriving town of Hollidaysburg makes this a very desirable location.

TERMS.—One-third of the purchase money to be paid on confirmation of the sale, the other two-thirds in two equal annual payments with interest, to be secured by the bond and mortgage of the purchaser.

HORRIBLE MURDER!

Three Persons Killed and their Bodies Partially Burned.

A most heart-rending and inhuman murder was perpetrated on Wednesday evening last, three-quarters of a mile from Pleasant Grove, a station on the Huntingdon and Broad Top Railroad, about seven miles from here. The house in which the deed was committed was occupied by Mr. John Peightal, Sarah his wife, and a boy named Scott Garner, son of a deceased soldier, who but a short time since came to live with Mr. Peightal. The house is situated about two hundred yards from the railroad, and there are no other houses within a mile. About six o'clock on Wednesday evening, the three persons had just commenced eating supper, when a man entered, armed with two pistols, and it is supposed that he shot them before they had time to observe who had intruded. Mr. Peightal was shot through the head, the boy also, and Mrs. Peightal through the neck. It is supposed that the latter was struck first with a hatchet and then shot.—He then used the hatchet to break open the bureau, but the handle breaking he broke it open with an axe. He ransacked the house, and took all the money he could find, the sum being estimated at $2000. He then gathered the bedclothes and piled them upon the victims, and set fire to them, thinking no doubt thus to burn the house and create the impression that no murder had been committed, and that they were consumed in the burning of the dwelling.

But fortunately, about nine o'clock, a gentleman passed the house and seeing smoke issuing therefrom, rushed to the kitchen door, and opening it discovered the unfortunate family lying on the floor, which was covered with blood, and their bodies partially consumed by the flames. Another gentleman came in, and with his assistance the fire was soon put out.—The suspicions of the neighbors who soon congregated rested upon two men, who had been seen in the neighborhood for two days previous. They at once telegraphed a description of the parties to Huntingdon, and from thence to Altoona.

The two men after committing the deed, came to Huntingdon, and stopped at a saloon until the three o'clock train west had arrived, which they got on. The authorities at Altoona had the train searched, on its arrival, and the two men were arrested and placed in the lock-up. While in the lock-up they tried to make their escape, but were discovered before they succeeded. On Thursday morning they were brought to Huntingdon in the 11 o'clock train. A large and excited crowd had gathered at the depot, and upon seeing the men, the cry of "lynch them," was raised, and it was with great difficulty that the threats were prevented from being carried into execution. They were hurried to the jail, and are now hand-cuffed and hobbled, and in different cells.

Their names are Godfroid Bohner, alias Charly Moore, and Alfred Bordenbourg. The latter individual was very communicative, and answered every inquiry that was propounded by those who went to see them. He says that the plot of robbing Mr. Peightal was made between them about a month ago; that three weeks ago they went to his house and asked for something to eat, which they did not get. They returned to Altoona where they boarded together and in which place they worked—Bohner in the Penn'a. lumber yard; Bordenbourg worked on the new round house. On Monday night, a week ago, he says they went to Pleasant Grove again, walking from here to there, and slept in Mr. Peightal's stable. On Tuesday night they got Mr Peightal's consent to sleep in the house, though Mrs. Peightal remonstrated. On Wednesday evening he says they went to the stable, where Bohner told him they would have to kill the family before they could get the money.—Bordenbourg says he couldn't kill, and that he then gave his pistol to Bohner, who told him to go to the railroad and watch, which he did.—Bohner, he says, did the deed, and came to the railroad where he was standing watch and gave him his share which was $120. They walked to Huntingdon that night, and took the train as above stated. They reached here at half past ten o'clock. He said he did not know that Bohner had killed the family until they were arrested at Altoona, where he heard of it. He says that while coming to Huntingdon, along the railroad, and when about half way, Bohner stopped and hid the money under the railroad ties. He said they had half a pint of liquor with them. We give this statement of Bordenbourg's for what it is worth, but it is the same which he has made to every one who questioned him.

Bohner was reticent, but hints that Bordenbourg did the killing and he watched. Both the men are Germans. Bohner was born in Wurtemburg, and is about forty years of age. He is five feet eight inches high, red hair, sandy complexion, and has the look of a villain. He has been six years in this country, two of which he spent in the western Penitentiary for robbing a store up Broad Top. He has been in our town many times, and was guilty of gross misconduct, for which he was compelled to leave. We believe he at one time worked for Mr. Peightal, and while with him learned that he had money.

Bordenbourg was born in Hanover, on the Rhine, in October, 1836, and is thirty-three years old. He is five feet four inches in height, has black hair, and is rather pale. He has been in this country three years, and has been working in a lumber yard in Altoona since May last. He wears a distressed look at this time, paces up and down his cell, and fully appreciates the condition in which his crime has plunged him. Bohner is unconcerned and treats the whole matter lightly.

While in Altoona the murderers were searched and Officer Clark took one hundred and ten dollars and seventy-five cents from Bordenbourg. On being brought to jail here the latter was found to have something in his mouth, and upon being seized by the neck he spit out twenty seven dollars and a half in gold. He swallowed several pieces.

Great sympathy was felt for the unfortunate family. On Thursday morning a large number of our citizens went to the house and saw their mutilated and scorched remains. They were buried on Saturday morning, and their remains were followed by a large concourse of neighbors. Mr. Peightal was a respectable farmer, 65 years of age; honest, sober and industrious. He was known to many of our citizens, and came regularly to town for twelve years to supply butter to a few families. He had accumulated a considerable sum of money in coin and greenbacks, which he injudiciously kept in the house. Mrs. Peightal was about the same age of her husband; the boy was aged about nine years.

CONFESSION OF BOHNER.

I was born in Wurtemberg, in May, 1827, and came to this country in '64. I was never married. I served as a private in Co. C, 70th New York Volunteers for two years and two months. After being discharged from the army I lived first in New York, then in Huntingdon, and latterly in Altoona. I worked in the coal mine on Broad Top a couple of months for Robert Hare Powell.

I was never acquainted with the family of John Peightal; but passed there and asked for work.

I first became acquainted with Oliver [Albert] Bordenbourg at his boarding house in Altoona in September last. We slept together and boarded at the same house. Soon after I got acquainted with him, he told me that Peightal had money. He said he had slept there twice. He asked me to go along and stay outside, and said I need not know what he did inside. We came down on the cars on Monday evening from Altoona, and walked from Huntingdon by way of McConnelstown to Peightal's that evening; and slept all night in his (Peightal's) stable loft. On Tuesday we walked over the neighborhood and inquired for work, and staid all night in a barn further down the road. On Wednesday morning we came to Huntingdon, and I did not want to go back. [This was on the morning of the murder).—[Albert) said if I did not go back he would shoot me We started back after dinner and walked by Peightal's; but went by the Broad Top to avoid getting there too soon. We stopped a while at McConnellstown station, and a while at Pleasant Grove. We reached Peightal's about 7 o'clock. I staid on the railroad and Oliver [Albert] went to the house. I heard only one shot. The wind was blowing very hard. He brought out the bag full of gold and silver. He gave me one of them, and said, "Now let's go." I think Oliver [Albert] had about twice as much money as I had. He told me in the lock-up at Altoona that he had put the money away while he was down in the privy, by digging a hole with his hand and burying it.

Convicted.

The trial of the murderers of Patrick Mackey on Broad Top, in August last, ended on Wednesday last. The jury returned at seven o'clock, after being out a little over an hour and rendered a verdict of murder in second degree. The names of the convicted persons are Cornelius Kane, John Lynch, Edward Powers and John Mulvihill. Kane and Lynch are boys, the former aged nineteen, and the latter only seventeen. We saw them in the jail on Thursday last, and they are greatly distressed. They have been found guilty of a serious crime, the consequences of which neither of them dreamt of when they took part in the affray that terminated the life of a human being; and this is the warning which should be heeded by all who take part in disturbances of the peace in a community.

A New Jail.

It is time the tax payers demand that a new jail be built in this county. Desperate criminals cannot be kept secure without the extra expense of guard duty. The county has now four able-bodied men performing guard duty at the jail night and day, and the guard must be kept there as long as the prisoners now in jail remain in it Six men charged with murder are now in jail—four have been found guilty in the second degree and will either be granted a new trial or sentenced the second week in December. The Peightal murderers will have to remain there until January Court before they can be tried. We repeat, it is time the tax-payers demand a new jail—money will be saved by building one that will keep prisoners safe.

Editors of country papers all around are talking about turkeys they didn't get for their Thanksgiving dinner—they will be satisfied if they can get them for Christmas or New Year's. Turkeys—they are poor stuff anyhow; give us a piece of pork and plenty of kraut, or several feet of sausage, something worth talking about, and we'll be as happy as any of our brethren who may fancy themselves somebody eating somebody's turkey.

A horrible affair occurred in Prospect borough, Cambria county, not long since. During the absence of the parents, two little children, a boy and a girl, possessed themselves of a jug of liquor, drank until they were hopelessly intoxicated, and notwithstanding the efforts of physicians the boy died in a few hours, and the girl was in a critical condition at last accounts.

TO THE OWNERS OF UNPATENTED LANDS:

In obedience to an Act of Assembly, approved the eighth day of April, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine, you are hereby notified that the "County Land Lien Dockets," containing the list of unpatented lands for Huntingdon county, prepared under the Act of Assembly of the fourteenth of May, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-four, and the supplement thereto, has this day been forwarded to the Prothonotary of the county, at whose office it may be examined. The liens can only be liquidated by the

How History Perverts Fact.

A late writer professes to prove beyond dispute that no such person as William Tell ever existed, and thereby knocks the story of the apple into a cocked hat.—Exchange.

Certainly not, we knew that all the time. No such man ever lived, and he didn't shoot an apple off his boy's head, and he didn't reply to Gesler when asked why he had concealed another "arrer" in his shirt bosom—"ter kill thee, tyrant, had I slain me boy!" as the melo dramatic gentleman says in the play; 'cause why, there wasn't any Gesler, and Tell didn't have any boy, and he couldn't shoot with a cross bow, and the apple crop was entirely cut off that year anyhow.

Generation after generation of credulous and confiding readers have been taken in regard Tell and a great many other heroes of the past. We have indubitable evidence that Christopher Columbus didn't discover America.—America discovered him, but he got a newspaper office first and took all the credit himself. No such man as Columbus ever lived.

Alexander the Great didn't cut the Gordian Knot, but got one of the Davenport Brothers to untie it; and he didn't weep because there were no more worlds to conquer, but he laughed and kicked up his heels, and wickedly said, "it's only this world and the next, and then we're through." Alexander the Great was no great shakes after all. Tom Allen could whip him the best day he ever saw, and we'll bet on it.

Julius Cæsar has gone into history as a victim of assassins. No such thing. He hired folks to kill him just for a sensation, and so the widow Cæsar could collect his life assurance.—Business was dull at the time and he made money by it.

Bonaparte didn't die on St. Helena, because he never went there. He put in a substitute and then fled to Canada, where he still lives, keeping a toll-gate near Malden. He frequently visits Detroit, and mingles with the old French families there. Singular how history will lie.

Joan of Arc was a man dressed up in woman's clothes. We knew of it at the time, but wouldn't let on. He knew she would be famous if he was captured and executed by the English and that reconciled her to his fate.

There was never such a man as Captain John Smith, and he didn't come to America to settle Virginia, but remained quietly in England and died there during childhood at the advanced age of eighty-five. He wasn't captured by Powhatan, and Pocahontas didn't rescue him, for he was released on a writ of habeas corpus issued by the United States Supreme Court.

Shakespeare never wrote any plays. His plays were all written by Boucicault and adapted for the stage by McKean and Buchanan.

Washington didn't use a hatchet on his father's cherry tree—he took his knife and girdled it—and he could tell a lie, if he wanted to, but he did not want to; he knew he would get off easier without it. His name was not George Washington originally. There were so many people named George Washington, and so many counties and towns called Washington [including the capital of the nation] that he came to like the name and had his own name changed to George Washington by act of the Legislature. How history does lie. "GRIS."

TWO BRIEF SERMONS.—A man in Philidelphia, while drunk, fell over an embankment, and died from the effects of the fall next day. Another man (also in Philadelphia) beat his wife so severely one week ago that she died from the effects of her injuries on saturday morning, leaving four children. The husband and murderer escaped at the time, but was found roaming the streets on Saturday in a drunken condition, and was duly arrested. He was also drunk when he committed the deed that caused his wife's death. There is food for reflection in these two brief sermons which come to us from Philadelphia by telegraph on the same day.

POST OFFICE VISITORS.—A great many "peculiar people" call at the post office, among whom may be mentioned the following: The individual who gets a letter about once in six months, but who always struggles to be first at the window; the one who regards his solitary letter as a natural curiosity, turning it over, viewing it from an uphill and downhill point, as it in astonishment that he should get one at all; the man from the country, who inquires for all the folks at his place; the spruce clerk who gets a dozen letters for his employer, and looks as wise as if they were all intended for himself; the indignant specimen who wanders why the d—uce the expected letter hasn't come, and who holds an earnest colloquy with the clerk as to the probable cause of its detention; the bashful young man, with faint traces of down on his chin, who expects a letter from his sweetheart, and who retires in confusion; the big paunched man, who treads on his neighbor's corns; the seedy customer, who gets a bill for washing, and tries to make you think it a draft; these, with the hobby who waits an hour on the curbstone to see who goes in and who comes out, are the most prominent of por' office visitors.

McGUIRE'S
SPANISH HAIR DRESSER

FOR PROMOTING THE GROWTH, BEAUTIFYING THE HAIR, And rendering it dark and glossy. No other compound possesses the peculiar properties which so exactly suit the various conditions of the human hair. The use of this oil as a hair dresser has been universal in every section of the country in the Spanish Main for centuries.—No preparation of art could give that elegant luxuriance and abundance of hair which have so often been the admiration of travlers in Spain. This oil is highly and delicately perfumed, forming an article unrivaled in excellence and upon which the Spanish people for many years have set its seal of enduring approval.

McGUIRE'S
Mexican Wild Flowers Shampoo Lotion

For removing dandruff and scurf from the head, whitening and perfuming the skin. This article is entirely different from anything of the kind ever offered in this country and is warranted free from all poisonous substances This valuable lotion was used by the Emperor Maximilian, and Empress Carlotta of Mexico, and universally used by Mexicans for three hundred years. As a wash for the head—it is cooling, cleansing and refreshing.—When thus used it at once relieves headache.

McGUIRE'S
WILD FLOWERS FOR THE TEETH.

All those who are in favor of white teeth and a pleasant and perfumed breath, should at once use McGuire's Wild Flowers for the Teeth. All those preparations are put up in the most elegant and ornamental manner. We make no exception in saying that they are an ornament to a lady's toilet table, and none complete without them.

Warranted satisfactory or money refunded. Dealers will bear this in mind. Sold by all respectable Druggists in the United States, and Canadas. Address orders to

UNFAILING EYE PRESERVERS!

Lazarus & Morris'
CELEBRATED
PERFECTED SPECTACLES
AND EYE GLASSES.

The large and increasing sales of these
SUPERIOR GLASSES
Is a sure proof of their usefulness. We were satisfied that they would be appreciated here as elsewhere, and that the quality of the advantages offered to wearers of our beautiful lenses, viz.: the ease and comfort, the assured and reality ascertained improvement of the sight, and the brilliant assistance they give in all cases, were in themselves so apparent on trial, that the result could not be otherwise than it has, in the almost general adoption of our CELEBRATED PERFECTED SPECTACLES by the residents of this locality.

With a full knowledge of the value of the assertion, we claim that they are the most perfect optical aids ever manufactured. To those needing Spectacles, we afford at all times an opportunity of procuring the best and most desirable.

Mr. AARON STEWARD,
Watchmaker and Jeweller,

Has always on hand a full assortment, suitable to every difficulty.

We take occasion to notify the public that we employ no peddlers, and to caution them against those pretending to have our goods for sale. jy22-1f

GET THE BEST
READY ROOFING,
Suitable for all Buildings, Dwellings, Barns, Churches Factories, &c., and for all climates; equally adapted to flat or steep roofs, and can be applied by any ordinary workman.

THE READY ROOFING
Is more durable than tin, and does not cost one half so much. It is cheaper than shingles, far more durable, and fire-proof. It is made of the heaviest fabric ever used for the purpose, and is put up in rolls ready for shipment to any part of the world. Send for circular and samples (sent free.)

We also manufacture
GRANITE CEMENT,
For repairing all kinds of leaky roofs, chimneys, sky lights, &c. This Roofing Cement forms a permanent asbestos roofing over the whole surface of all roofs, whether tin, shingle or composition, completely closing up leakages, and being composed, largely of ground granite, which sets and hardens, and soon becomes an artificial Slate or Stone covering.

ROOF PAINT,
For coating Tin and all kinds of metal and composition roofs. It will not run, crack, or peal off, but form a permanent and perfect protection, wherever placed. It is furnished at half the cost, and possesses twice the durability of the common oil paints used for such purposes.

County rights for sale.

SOLDIERS' HEIRS, ATTENTION!
The act of Congress approved March 2, 1867, gives to Heirs of Soldiers who died prisoners of war,
COMMUTATION FOR RATIONS,
for the time the soldier was so held a prisoner, at the rate of twenty-five cents per day, to be paid in the following order: 1st. To the widow, if unmarried; 2d. To the children; 3d. To the parents, to both jointly if they are living, if either is dead, to the survivor; 4th. To the brothers and sisters.

The act of February 23, 1867, provides for the refunding of the $300 Commutation Money, where the same person was drafted, and was required to enter the service or furnish a substitute.

DISCHARGED SOLDIERS.
The act of March 2, 1867, also makes provisions for the payment of the $100 ADDITIONAL BOUNTY
to such soldiers as have accidentally lost their discharge.

All persons having any claims under any of the above mentioned Acts, or any other kind of claim against the United States or State Governments, can have them promptly collected, by addressing the undersigned. Information and advice cheerfully given to soldiers or their friends, free of charge.
